ALFA-OMEGA OPENS IN DOLORES

Print | Send to a friend

Gemma Quinn / 2012-06-17 17:38:48

There is nothing better than gazing in to a crystal clear sea as blue as the sky above it and daydreaming about the tropical island that lies amongst it all imagining you are there....well you can almost feel like you are there as you immerse yourself in the collection of artwork currently on show at the Cultural Centre in Dolores.

The tropical and underwater scenes are the creation of artist Ronen Zlotogovra who opened his first ever exhibition on Friday evening in Dolores, just months after moving to the village. It was a few weeks ago that we featured 'Artist Ron' in the Leader after he had just moved back to the South Costa Blanca after spending a few years in Jijona building up his successful airbrushing business teaching and working on commissioned pieces like helmets and bikes.

But after meeting his now good friend, José Antonio, known in the artist world as 'Pastrana' he was inspired to paint what he wants to paint rather than what he is asked to paint for customers. "José Antonio is quite renown in his own right as an artist and is a respected professor of arts teaching at a number of universities across Spain." Ron continues, "He came to me to teach him airbrushing as he had never really come across it before and it was quite a taboo subject at one time so he never learnt about it so I began to teach him and we became friends and he is teaching me about fine arts, helping me get my artist CV together and approach galleries."

It was upon Pastrana's encouragement that he put together this exhibition of works and was also honoured that Pastrana joined him. He is far from a novice in the art world having produced a staggering amount of work for over 250 exhibitions in just 4 years during his time in Madrid. He is also credited with hosting the country's largest solo exhibition; a total of 1,266 works, of which 1,001 are pictures of the exhibition, 'Revelations', which breaks with traditional patterns and the use of unconventional elements.

Originally from Leon, but now living in San Vicente, Pastrana is displaying quite a different style of work to Ron's with Pastrana showing a very conceptual style with mixed media in dark, intriguing colours, juxtaposed next to Ron's bright and breezy seascapes, making the exhibition a unique and interesting find for art lovers or those simply wanting to purchase a new piece of original art for their home.

Already local people were making their way through the doors to see the work for themselves as it opened on Friday and Ron would like to express his thanks to the support he has had from the Town Hall in allowing him and Pastrana to exhibit and to the Fountain Bar for kindly sponsoring the catering. The exhibition is entitled Alfa-Omega, the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet representing the first exhibition for Ron and the last in his current series for Pastrana. It is on in the Sala De Exposiciones in the new Casa de Cultural behind the school in Dolores every day from 5pm-9pm until Saturday 23rd June. For more information call Ron on 653 401 856.
